PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The New Pen Del region is becoming alive with activity and with the opening up of the states, we have been busy planning our events...The Triple Crown was the first NPD sponsored event in well over a year and it was a great success. It was wonderful to see all the Newf friends that we haven't seen in well over a year. People and dogs came from great distances to attend. The south and mid-west were well represented as was New England and the Mid Atlantic. There were lots of puppies and veterans alike. In fact, the winner of the Triple Crown was an 8-year-old Veteran!!! The site is perfect for a dog show...lots of space to park RVs and for grooming.

Looking forward we are excited to be hosting our Water Test in September, a Regional in October, along with a Draft Test and Fun Day and Annual Awards presentation and Annual Meeting. October is going to be a VERY busy month.

All of our events will be consistent with the current state laws and CDC mandates with regard to Covid Precautions. We want everyone to attend and be comfortable doing so. The flyers and premium lists for events will provide guidance in this regard.

We are in the process of arranging with several sites for water training throughout the entire region...there should be additional information in Bear Facts with regard to location, dates and times.

I look forward to seeing you all at one or more of the upcoming events!!!

Best Regards,

Chris LaMuraglia

NEWFOUNDLAND SPECIALTIES

New Pen Del....
Southeastern....
Colonial....
Newfoundland Clubs....

Oldest Newf Competing at the Triple Crown:
 12-year-old Ch. Pouch Cove's Material Girl "Riley"
 in the Veterans class

Look what happens when 3 Regional Clubs and a handful of creative and dedicated people have an idea and it comes to fruition!

Countless hours of planning proved that hard work does pay off!!! Six independent Regional Specialties with 3 Sweepstakes... All 3 clubs complemented each other with strengths in different areas and it all came together to provide the Newf fancy with a great long weekend and an opportunity for 12 majors. We had a class dog finish his CH. in 24 hours with 3 5 point majors... I think that may be a record!!!!

The show set up began Wednesday April 21, under the direction of the very hardworking Don Sharkey....Don's team was fabulous...the grounds looked great and ready to go when many of the exhibitors started arriving Thursday morning...We had at least 20 RVs parked around the ring along with many vans and set ups! There was plenty of room to socially distance for all..

Friday was New Pen Del's day to host and it rolled around very quickly with the judging beginning at 8:30 with Puppy Sweepstakes, then onto Veterans Sweepstakes handily judged by Dona Baker Austin...then the first point show began with Vicki Seiler Cushman stepping in the ring to pass judgment on the Newfs... she was fabulous with the puppies and veterans alike..class dogs and bitches were put through their paces... Then came the Specials to compete for Best of Breed and the first of 6 possible spots in the finale "Triple Crown" competition with the secret judge... Each Best of Breed winner from each of the 6 shows competed on Sunday after the last Specialty!!!

Bob Busby judged the second show on Friday afternoon!!! By the end of the first day, we had 1 dog to compete in the finale...yup the same dog went Best of Breed at both shows...The Results are listed in the following pages of this issue...

The Southeastern Newf Club hosted on Saturday and Colonial Newf Club on Sunday...Four more specialties with 2 more Sweepstakes one of which was judged by our very own Wendy Keyser...

In the end, late Sunday afternoon we had 3 dogs competing in the Triple Crown under our Secret Judge Lynne Hamilton who selected the Veteran Xander, GCHP2 OCEANO DARBYDALE'S XECUTIVE DECISION as the winner of the Triple Crown!!!

What a fun great weekend!!!

NEW-PEN-DEL WATER TRAINING

The New Pen Del Board and Committees are working hard to establish water training opportunities for our members in NJ and PA. The increased volume of visitors to state parks through the pandemic has made it difficult to obtain the permits needed for us to train in public parks. Nevertheless, we continue to seek out appropriate locations and expect to provide some options in the next few weeks. Please keep an eye on your email and our Facebook page for more information.

In the meantime, Colonial Newfoundland Club has graciously invited our members to train at their Open Swim dates listed below and/or participate in their upcoming Water Training Seminar. Please coordinate with the Colonial Club to attend their events.

COME TO ME WORKSHOP

By Amy Peraza-Kroeger

The cold, gray, damp morning was not enough to deter a group of friends and NPD members from meeting up to participate in a Come to Me Workshop with their Newfoundlands in Wall Township, NJ. The workshop was taught by Teryl, a wonderful, experienced trainer focused on positive reinforcement. The Newfs, of course, thought the weather was just lovely and are always excited to learn!

We gathered at the instructor's home that was the perfect setting for the class. The fencing even extended up the driveway so the crated newfs could stay in the cars with all the doors open in between exercises.

The instructor started off with some tips to keep in mind as we worked.

- Choose a recall word exclusively for emergency situations. It should not be the same word used in Obedience Classes for their formal recall. Since most use COME or FRONT in classes, we used the word HERE in the workshop. Say the word in a high pitched and exciting tone of voice.
- Don't call your dog to come if you know they're not going to come. It just reinforces them ignoring you.
- Work with very high value treats! And reinforce the high value treats with lots of love and praise. Express to them, that they are the best pups in the world for coming when called!

Jake responding to his name being called.

FIRST EXERCISE: THE NAME GAME – PART ONE

The goal was to get your dog's attention by calling their name. We rewarded the attention, not the recall. We had half the dogs out at a time, so they were a little bit distracted by each other. We stood with our dog on a 6' leash with the handler not moving. As the dogs wandered to the end of the leash, we would call their name. At the first turn of their head to look at the handler, the handler would move in toward the dog and reward the attention. This is much harder than it sounds. We dispensed the treats from our mouths so that the dogs would look at our faces to be ready to receive the next instructions. But it took a bit of coordination and you had to be quick. I think many of us will be practicing that exercise at home.

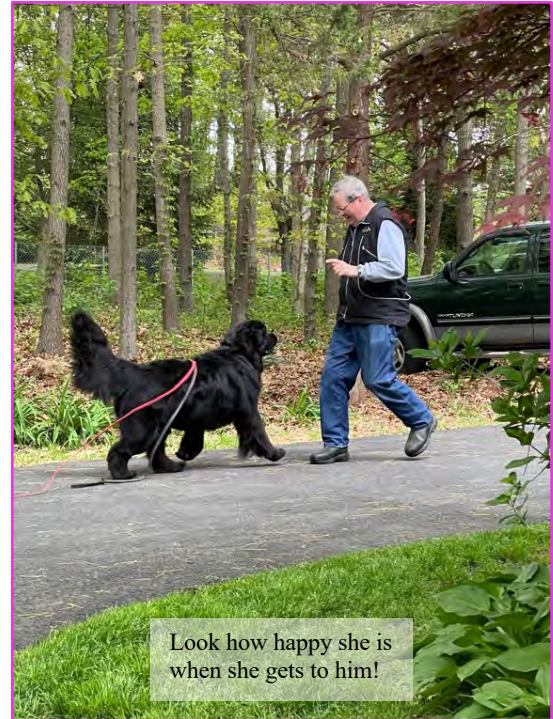

NEW-PEN-DEL

SECOND EXERCISE: THE NAME GAME – PART TWO

This was a fun exercise for both dogs and handlers. Lots of treats in fast succession. In this exercise, the pattern was to throw a treat within a leash length, when the dog got to the treat, call their name, when they give you their attention with a turn of the head, throw another treat the opposite direction. When they reach that treat, call their name again, then give them a treat when they return to you. This was an exercise that we had learned in an Attention class a few years ago and we still do this with our newfs all the time on walks. The dogs love it!

Bella really wants to get back to Dan! Ana and Teryl hold her back.

Look how happy she is when she gets to him!

THIRD EXERCISE: RECALL WITH EXCITEMENT

In this exercise there was only one dog out of their crates at a time. This was a recall exercise using the new Emergency Recall Word, HERE. The dogs were held by the instructor, (along with Ana because our dogs are very strong) as the handlers would move about 50' away. The instructor encouraged us to be very enthusiastic as we were walking away from the dog, talking to them and getting them excited to want to run toward us. Then the handlers called the dog with the HERE command, and Ana and the instructor would drop the leashes. This is not a formal recall, in this emergency recall we want the dog to be super excited to come to us. We used a high pitched, happy voice to give the HERE command, and then excitedly coaxed them to us as they ran toward us. The reward was a jackpot of several high value treats and lots of love, praise and excited voices! There was some confusion here as the dogs learned the new HERE command. Several were very familiar with COME, and the new command took a little getting used to. But Newfs are particularly smart when there are treats and love involved, and they learned their new emergency recall word quickly. That is if the handlers remembered to say the new word!

FOURTH EXERCISE: RECALL WITH DISTRACTIONS

This exercise used a long line to help the dog perform the recall if the distractions proved too, well, distracting. We worked with one dog at a time. The long line

Henry has a whole lot of enthusiasm for his distraction, but he came back to his Mom even faster!

NEW-PEN-DEL

Winnie returning to Amy after being distracted by the instructor.

dragged behind the dog. The dog started the exercise with their handlers and the instructor would encourage the dog to come to her. When the dog got pretty close to the instructor, who also had some tasty treats with her, the handler would call the dog back to them. It was surprising to see how eager many of the dogs were to get back to their handlers. For the few that really wanted to visit with the instructor (they are people-loving Newfs after all) the handler would step on the long line to remind the dog which way they should be moving.

FIFTH EXERCISE: HIDE AND SEEK

This exercise was so fun!! The dogs really loved it and it was incredible to see how they would navigate through the property to find where their handlers had hidden themselves. The exercise started with the dogs facing away from the handlers as the handlers hid themselves in several locations through the property. When the teacher said CALL YOUR DOG, the handlers would start yelling HERE (Dogs Name) every few seconds. None of the dogs even hesitated. They all started moving toward their handlers after the first call. Sometimes they would change direction as they realized their handlers weren't where they originally thought. You could really see the dogs thinking their way through this exercise.

That was all we had time for before the hard rain (and hail apparently just a few miles away) moved in and we called it a morning. Another exercise that we could have done was to have the dogs recall with food or toy distractions and see if they'd run past them. We didn't have time that day, but we may follow up with a future workshop to play some more recall games and reinforce what we learned!

All of the participants loved the workshop and really felt they had gained valuable information, even those whose dogs already have AKC Companion Dog (CD) titles. The workshop was a great reminder that training should be fun and exciting for you and your dog! Make it a game! We received a very nice note from the instructor afterwards about how nice it was to see a group of friends training together and everyone being so supportive of each other. It made us so grateful to be a part of our Newfoundland community where we all try to be as benevolent as our wonderful breed!

A solid emergency recall is one of the best tools you can have to keep your dogs safe!

Try some of these fun exercises with your dogs!

The Heroic Dog on the Titanic

A Newfoundland dog helped rescue passengers from the Titanic.

William Murdoch and Rigel

The year 2012 marks the 100th anniversary of the sinking of the RMS Titanic, which went down around midnight on April 14, 1912. Titanic was considered to be the most luxurious ship ever built and was thought to be unsinkable. At its helm was the experienced first officer, William McMaster Murdoch, of Scotland. Murdoch brought a companion when he came to the Titanic: a large, black Newfoundland dog, named Rigel, whom he had also had with him when he was serving on the Titanic's sister ship, the RMS Olympic. On that fateful night, Rigel was safely housed in the Titanic's modern kennel facilities since Murdoch needed to focus on the goal of this voyage—to reach New York in record time.

Each day, a crewmember would take the dogs for a stroll around the promenade deck. These canine parades became quite an event and people would schedule their times on deck so that they could see the dogs. Everyone seemed to be enjoying the dogs so much that an informal dog show was scheduled by the first class passengers to be held on Monday, April 15th. Unfortunately, that show would never take place.

In the fog and darkness Titanic collided with an iceberg tearing five hull compartments open. This was too much for the "unsinkable" ship and she began to go down. In the years that followed, the human tragedy and bravery of that night would be well documented. We know quite a bit about the fate of the 1,522 people that were lost that night, and even more about the 714 people that survived. In the chaos of those events, it is not surprising to find that the accounts of what happened to the dogs are less clear. Some of the reports are confused or incomplete, but the following information appears in a variety of respected accounts of that fateful night.

Although many people died because of the inadequate number of lifeboats it turns out that some of the first boats in the water had empty seats. Thus, Henry and Myra Harper boarded their boat carrying their Pekingese, and Elizabeth Rothschild and Margaret Hays each boarded different boats carrying their small Pomeranians and the presence of the dogs was not challenged. The Bishops' little dog was with them in their cabin; however, when it became clear that, by now, there were not enough lifeboats for all the passengers, Helen Bishop felt obliged to leave her much-loved pet behind. Later, she would tearfully tell how, as she left the cabin for the last time, Frou Frou grabbed the hem of her dress, trying to keep her from going.

NEW-PEN-DEL

In the case of Ann Isham, however, her dog was a Great Dane and clearly too large for the lifeboats. She refused to leave her dog behind and insisted that she would do what was needed to save him. Sadly, after the sinking, her body was observed in the water with her arms frozen around her beloved dog.

But what of Rigel and the other dogs in the kennels? Murdoch had no opportunity to leave his post to rescue his dog. After the collision, he took charge of the starboard evacuation. Crew members report seeing Murdoch hard at work, attempting to free Collapsible Lifeboat A from the rope tackles used to lower it when a huge wave washed him overboard. He was never seen again.

An unknown passenger went to the kennels and released all of the dogs in an attempt to spare them the horror of drowning in locked cages. Sadly most of the dogs simply disappeared in the cold water, but Rigel's fate was different. Most of the passengers (and dogs) that ended up in the freezing water died from exposure. For that reason, some people have questioned whether a dog such as Rigel could have survived a long swim in the icy ocean. However the Newfoundland dog was bred to function in the harsh conditions of the North Atlantic. It has webbed feet, a rudder-like tail, and a water-resistant coat that make it a natural swimmer. Its body uses the same mechanisms to combat hypothermia that polar bears possess. This allows these dogs to help retrieve fishing nets off the shores of its home island near mainland Canada-actually 400 miles north of where the Titanic sank. There are also many stories of Newfoundlands rescuing people from the sea and enduring icy conditions for long periods of time.

Rigel swam around, at first apparently desperately looking for his master, but after awhile he chose to simply stay close to Lifeboat 4. The dog was too large to bring on board even if there had been space to do so, but the humans, in their exposed lifeboat, apparently suffered more from the effects of the wet and cold than Rigel did from the freezing water.

More than two hours after the Titanic went down, the passenger ship Carpathia finally arrived and began to pick up the surviving passengers. However, it was still dark and a low mist hung on the water. Carpathia's crew was calling out and waiting for lifeboat passengers to respond in order to locate them. Lifeboat 4 was separated from the other lifeboats by some distance. Finally, the Carpathia began to pull away from the area, unknowingly on a course directly bearing down on the unseen little lifeboat. Its passengers were simply too weak to shout loudly enough to avoid being run down by the ship. Yet, somehow, Rigel was still strong enough to bark. Carpathia's Captain Arthur Henry Rostron heard the dog and ordered the ship to stop. Swimming in front of the lifeboat, the dog marked the location of the survivors and all were hauled up the starboard gangway.

The day after the Carpathia reached New York with the survivors, the New York Herald carried a story about Rigel's significant role in the rescue of Titanic's passengers. The reporter noted that, since the dog's owner was dead, one of Carpathia's crew named Brigg had adopted him. This was an error, as "Brigg" was the name of a passenger on the lifeboat. Recent evidence suggests that Rigel was adopted by John Brown, Carpathia's Master at Arms, who, at 62 years of age was the second oldest crewman. Brown retired shortly after and took Rigel with him to his rural home in Scotland. Presumably, this canine hero of the Titanic tragedy finished out his natural life without ever having to face icy water again.

-NEW YORK TIMES, C.1905

The first known dog show was held in 1859, when a group of hunters assembled in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, to judge 60 dogs from the pointer and setter classes. The judges had no complex standards by which to judge the assembled hounds, but simply evaluated how well the dogs did their jobs.

NEW-PEN-DEL

The shows rapidly gained popularity in the UK, and expanded to include more breeds and classes. As kennel clubs formed, standards were codified for each breed, with lists of ideal characteristics.

A prize-winning purebred dog was considered valuable breeding stock (not to mention a status symbol) and could be sold for huge sums. The rich, the nobility and even royalty flocked to these competitions. J.P Morgan once tried to purchase a Pekingese for £32,000 and was refused. Deerhounds bred by Queen Victoria herself were said to be worth $50,000 apiece.

In the United States, dog shows were popularized by P.H. Bryson, whose doctor had recommended hunting with a dog as good exercise to recover from his Civil War wounds. Bryson later competed against that same doctor in a 1874 show, where he won the world's first Best in Show award.

The famed Westminster Kennel Club show was first held at the Westminster Hotel in 1877 and is today the second oldest annual sporting event in the U.S., after the Kentucky Derby.

Top 5 Ways to Fight Fleas and Ticks

<https://www.petmd.com/dog/care/top-5-ways-fight-fleas-and-ticks>

By Dr. Sarah Wooten, DVM

Fleas and ticks got you down? Can't seem to keep them off your pets or out of your home? How about some free veterinary advice on what really works to eradicate fleas and ticks for good?

Here my top five recommendations on how to win the fight against fleas and ticks.

1. Utilize Long-Lasting, Quick-Killing Flea and Tick Products

There are many flea and tick prevention products available today—both over-the-counter and prescription—but how do you know which dog flea and tick control is the best?

When you are choosing a flea and tick prevention product, you will want to look for three key factors:

1. Good residual activity (which means it keeps killing fleas and ticks over time)
2. Fast and efficient elimination
3. High level of safety

Isoxazolines

The flea and tick products out there right now for dogs that I recommend are isoxazolines—

Simparica, NexGard and Bravecto. These are all prescription flea and tick preventatives that are only available by prescription from your veterinarian. Isoxazolines kill fleas and ticks within two to four hours and keep killing for weeks.

Simparica and NexGard are labeled for monthly administration and come in a chewable tablet form. Bravecto is labeled for administration every 12 weeks (or three months) and comes in a chew as well as a topical solution.

The Northeast is ground zero for Lyme disease, and it already has a significant baseline tick population in most years. Forecasters predict that this summer, however, will see spring and summer temperatures around the regional average, and more precipitation than usual, leading to above average tick populations. www.pests.org

The FDA (<https://www.fda.gov/animal-veterinary/cvm-updates/animal-drug-safety-communication-fda-alerts-pet-owners-and-veterinarians-about-potential-neurologic>) released a statement last year warning pet parents of the potential adverse neurological effects of isoxazolines; however, this product is still considered to be safe for the majority of animals. Always ask your veterinarian for her recommendation on the best flea and tick products for your individual pet.

NEW-PEN-DEL

Spinosad

Other options for pet parents include prescription flea and tick products that use spinosad, like Comfortis.

These prescription flea and tick preventatives are also administered monthly in the form of a chewable tablet. Spinosad flea and tick preventatives are available for both dogs and cats.

One of the major positives about spinosad products is that they kill fleas fast—within 30 minutes. But, are flea pills safe for dogs? With spinosad flea and tick products, vomiting is a common side effect. This is why administering the tablet with food is recommended.

Imidacloprid and Flumethrin

Some pet parents may like cat flea and tick collars and dog flea and tick collars. Seresto offers flea and tick collars that use a combination of imidacloprid and flumethrin to combat fleas and ticks for up to eight months in dogs and cats.

The pros to these flea and tick collars is that they last for eight months and are low-maintenance. You also don't need to wear gloves when handling the collars.

However, if you like to take your dog swimming, this may not be the best option for you. For dogs that swim more than once a month, the flea-fighting power of Seresto is reduced to five months, the manufacturer says, while the tick control duration is reduced to seven months.

As you can see, there are lots of choices! Your best resource for your area is your local veterinarian, who can tell you what works and what doesn't.

2. Choose Flea and Tick Prevention That Combats the Entire Flea Life Cycle

Just killing adult fleas isn't enough; you've got to stop the fleas from breeding. The flea life cycle is relatively short, so it is smart to choose flea and tick prevention that can attack fleas at every life stage.

After a flea feeds on a pet, it can start laying 40-50 eggs a day in as little as 48 hours.

If you've got a bad flea problem, then you'll want to know what kills fleas on dogs instantly. In this case, you'll need a flea and tick preventative that kills adult fleas, kills flea eggs and stunts the growth of the larvae and pupae stage fleas.

For dogs, products that contain lufenuron—like Sentinel—are a good choice. Lufenuron disrupts the growth of immature fleas and prevents them from turning into adult fleas.

However, if your pet is dealing with a flea infestation, you should talk with your veterinarian to find the best solution for your pet.

3. Treat All Pets in the Household

To prevent reinfestation, you will need to attack every active host and potential host of the fleas. That means treating every pet in your house as well as the house itself.

If you are treating the dog, the cat still may have fleas that can infest your dog and your house again! Even if you only see fleas on one pet, it is best to treat all pets in the household.

Ticks in the Northeast include:

- Deer tick (blacklegged tick)
- Brown dog tick
- American dog tick
- Lone star tick

4. Identify Flea Dens and Treat Them Immediately

Sometimes your pet can get fleas if he has wandered into or through a flea den. Flea dens happen when a flea-infested animal rests in one place, like a on a pile of leaves or under a porch. While the animal is resting, fleas and eggs drop off into the environment.

Of course, these areas are of interest to your dog or cat—they smell interesting. If your dog or cat happens across one, they are likely to investigate and pick up fleas of their own.

There are two things to do if you pet has encountered a flea den: treat your dog or cat with a quick flea-killing product, like Capstar, and then treat the flea den, if you can, with a product like Advantage yard and premise spray. This won't kill fleas over time, but it will stop an acute infestation as long as you kill fleas before they start breeding.

5. Vacuum to Help Fight Flea Infestations in Your Home

If a pet in your home has been dealing with a flea infestation, then flea eggs have made it into and around your home. Flea eggs fall off of their hosts as they move, which means that they end up in your upholstery, furniture and carpets.

One study explains that no matter what type of vacuum you use, vacuuming can be an effective way of collecting and killing fleas of every life stage in your home. Also vacuum pet bedding, carriers, and any place where your pet spends time resting.

“while some regions, most notably the Southeast, may not see more tick activity than usual, most states will experience the warmer, wetter conditions that drive tick populations—and the prospect of tick borne diseases—skyward.” www.pests.org

Draft Workshop: Sue Marino, Todd Bennett and Sue Mendelson have been contacted and are willing to come to the workshop. It will be held at Mercer if they open it for group events. Brubaker will be the second choice.

Draft Test update for Fall: Tiffany Reed has joined the committee. Secretary Pat Mathews informed NCA that the test has been postponed to late fall. Date still to be determined.

Water Test Judges: Amy will contact judges in the coming week and will then send the application to NCA.

Status of Tobyhana Park visit- no date has been set due to weather-hoping for March. Karen will call and confirm that we can train there, put a boat in the water, how many dogs and check on insurance requirements.

Discussion: Discussion addressed the issue of sharing responsibility with another club- this did not seem feasible. They would need 8-10 members willing to steward. The Board decided not to take this on due to limited manpower and inability of members to commit this far in advance.

Board agreed to offer to help another club at Nationals if someone else takes it on.

Agenda Item: Awards

Presenter: Karin Bystol/Donna Campbell

Awards Committee Update: Karin Bystol / Donna Campbell

I have contacted Patricia Eubanks and she has agreed to take each individual element from the Versatile Newfoundland print (available on Wild Apricot) that she did for the club and make individual 12 x12 prints that we can use for awards for 2021. All the dogs in the artwork will be black. There will be an award for AKC conformation titles, NCA Water titles, NCA draft titles and any AKC obedience titles. We are thinking of purchasing 16 x16' black frames with mats with a 11.5 x 11.5 "opening for the artwork. (See diagram below). This frame is available on amazon.

The cost for “redoing” each individual element of the VN print is $20 each - so $80.

As far as other awards go, living legends, top NCA breeder, top show dog, top show bitch, the floor is open to discussion. Patricia has other prints available on her website that might be appropriate in these cases. The VN award will be the one that we have available on our website that she already designed.

Donna and I thought that going with Patricia’s artwork would be a nice option for this year, considering that we already have a relationship with her as a Club and given the pandemic and the limited time that we have to establish a relationship with another artist. Plus, with the personalization of the frames (however we decide to do it) it makes it a special award for each individual dog/owner.

We are open to ideas about how to do the personalization on the bottom and top of the frame, but we figured a Cricut-cut text in vinyl or some appropriate media attached to the mat of the frame would be a good way to go without having to break the bank on personal engravings.

Tiffany is willing to do a test run and play with different options of personalization with her Cricut Maker to see what it looks like on a practice sample mat before we commit to doing this method for personalization.

If these awards, for whatever reason, do not go over well, and we need to look at other options for the future. I have been in contact on FB Messenger with Michelle Brown of Brown Dog Burned Creations to see if she might want to work with us for 2022). She replied that she may be able to work with us in the future, but not this year, and that it would take her six months to complete an order. Michelle has a lot of burned wood creations (see her FB page) that would be nice awards. Ex. Clocks, leash racks, cutting boards, coasters, ornaments etc. That is just one option to keep in mind, or we could use the Patricia Eubanks awards in conjunction with another option for other (non VN) awards. For now, I think that the Patricia Eubank awards more than fit the bill.

Please let Donna and I know how you feel about this type of award for 2021. Donna has received so far ~10 Awards forms from the membership for this year. The deadline for submission is March 31st.

- Karin Bystol

Discussion: There would be special awards for top awards. There are many items on the Eubanks' website that we could take advantage of. A budget needs to be developed for board approval. Mark will be involved in that process. The costs in the past have not been high. Awards are from January to January. The deadline for submission is March 1. There was some discussion as to whether or not we should send out reminders. The consensus was we should not.

A 12x12 cost is $20. Karin and Donna will talk to Euny about printing. There is a very quick turn around.

Questions arose concerning distribution- should they be done by mail or wait until we can have a safe outdoor gathering and present in person. Videos can be posted on facebook.
